

FIRST AMENDMENT FRAUD

By Reverend Fuzzy

All too often, I see a public prayer, or public display of worship being torn apart by some slovenly liberal yelling “Separation of church and state!” But did you know that this is just a really bad interpretation of the 1st amendment of the United States constitution?

There ARE no laws against public prayer or worship! So you ask “So what DOES the 1st amendment really Say? Or do you even know?” My answer to this, is yes, I know what it says, and here it is, for you to dip your brain into...

U.S. Constitution, First Amendment

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

What does this mean for us religious folk?

- 1) The government, be it federal or state, may not start it's own national, or state church.
- 2) The government, be it federal or state, may not show favoritism to any one denomination.
- 3) The government, be it federal or state, may not prevent expressions of prayer or other worship in public places.

In conclusion:

If the government, be it federal or state, should pass a law prohibiting any of the rights mentioned in this amendment, then such law is unconstitutional, and may not be enforced.
